

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

SCENE II. THE WINTER'S TALE.

Leon. Thou want'st a rough pash and the shoots that I have,
To be full like me; yet they say we are Almost as like as eggs; women say so,
That will say any thing:

but were they false
As o'er-dyed blacks, as wind, as waters, false
As dice are to be wish'd by one that fixes
No bourn twixt his and mine,

yet were it true

To say this boy were like me. Come, sir page,
Look on me with your welkin eye: sweet villain!
Most dear'st! my collop! Can thy dam?—may 't be?

Affection! thy intention stabs the centre:
Thou dost make possible things not so held,
Communicatest with dreams:—how can this be?—
With what 's unreal thou coactive art,
And fellow'st nothing: then 'tis very credent
Thou may'st co-join with something; and thou dost,
And that beyond commission, and I find it,
And that to the infection of my brains
And hardening of my brows.

Pol. What means Sicilia?

Her. He something seems unsettled.

NOTE TO VISITORS.

Visitors to the Shakespeare Memorial usually first inspect the Library (on the ground floor to the left of entrance), then pass up the grand staircase to the Theatre, ascend the Tower, view the Picture Gallery and descend to the Hall again, pass into the Garden to the Gower Monument of Shakespeare, and return through the Hall to the principal entrance.

The dimensions of the Pictures given in this Catalogue are sight measurements.

The Pictures in the Hall and Landing are first described (Nos. 90 to 104) pp. 1 to 26.

The pictures in the Gallery follow (Nos. 1 to 119) pp. 29 to 97.

The public are admitted to view the buildings, including the Theatre and Picture Gallery at a charge of 6d. each. Parties exceeding 20 in number are admitted by arrangement.

Season Tickets can be obtained for 1/- each; these admit readers to the Library.

THE SHAKESPEARE MEMORIAL.

SHAKESPEARE MEMORIAL STRATFORD-UPON-AVON.

BRIEF ACCOUNT OF THE MEMORIAL . . .

So long ago as the year 1820 the idea of building a Memorial Theatre in Stratford as a tribute to the memory of Shakespeare occurred to Charles Mathews, the comedian.

There is in the Memorial Library a play bill for December 20th, 1820, whereon is stated that:—"Mr. Mathews most respectfully informs the public that he will be found at home at the Town Hall, Stratford-upon-Avon, that evening, when he will have the honour of presenting to them his last new entertainment called 'Country Cousins and the Sights of London.'" At the foot of the bill appears the following note: "At the conclusion of the evening's entertainment Mr. Mathews will have the honour of submitting to the audience the nature of some proposals that have been suggested for the purpose of erecting, in the form of a Theatre in Stratford, a National Monument and Mausoleum to the immortal memory of Shakespeare."

Although at the time the suggestion was well received nothing was then done to carry out Mr. Mathews' plan, and the idea lay dormant until 1864, when the Tercentenary of Shakespeare's birth was celebrated at Stratford. Eleven years later the Memorial Fund was started by Mr. Charles E. Flower, with a handsome donation and the gift of a site.*

The site, then to all appearance an unpromising one, upon the banks of the Avon had been used for docks and wharves, its selection, however, has since been fully justified.

The original proposal at the Tercentenary Celebration was to erect a statue; but it was felt that a theatre, wherein

* In 1820 there was no permanent theatre in Stratford, but a temporary one, under the management of a lady, had been open a few years before that date. In 1821 a new theatre was equipped in More Town's End, a street now known as Greenhill Street. The first permanent theatre in Stratford, however, was built half-way down Chapel Lane, upon part of New Place Garden, and opened with a performance of "As You Like It," December 12th, 1827. The doors of that building were closed for the last time after a performance of "Hamlet," on April 30th, 1872. For full particulars see Past Dramatic Performances in Stratford-upon-Avon, by W. Hutchings, Price 6d.

Shakespeare's plays could be adequately represented would be a more fitting tribute to his genius.

On April 23rd, 1877, the three hundred and twelfth anniversary of the poet's birth, the first stone of the Memorial Building was laid by the Rt. Hon. Lord Leigh, with full Masonic ceremonial. Contributions to the building and endowment fund were given liberally by English and American Shakespeareans, but it was principally to the energy and enthusiasm of Mr. Flower that the scheme owed its success; for this reason as well as for his liberality he is justly considered to be the founder of the Memorial. A portrait of Mr. Flower (painted by Phil. R. Morris, A.R.A.), presented to him by his friends and fellow-townsmen, hangs in the Library Reading Room.

The building, designed by Mr. W. F. Unsworth in the Gothic style, comprises a Theatre, Library, Picture Gallery, and Central Tower, standing in a beautiful garden beside the river Avon, which here flows quietly in a broad stream towards the church where Shakespeare lies buried. Every detail of the building being carefully considered with a view to the purpose for which it is intended, as well as to artistic effect, the work is substantial and good throughout, with nothing sham or inharmonious; the staircase, constructed of Caen stone and Purbeck marble, is especially beautiful. The stained glass windows represent "The Seven Ages of Man" ("As You Like It," Act II., Scene 8, 139); Queen Elizabeth; and Queen Victoria.

The Theatre,

With accommodation for nearly nine hundred persons, is open occasionally during the year for dramatic performances.

The act-drop, painted by W. R. Beverly, represents "The Globe Theatre," and the "Bear Garden" in Southwark, with a state procession of Queen Elizabeth in the foreground.

The Memorial Theatre was opened on April 23rd, 1879, with a performance of "Much Ado About Nothing," in which Lady Theodore Martin (Helen Faucit) and the late Mr. Barry Sullivan took part, while Miss Kate Field delivered a dedicatory address, written by Dr. Westland Marston. Shakespeare's birthday (the 23rd April) has since been celebrated annually by the revival of one of his plays, during a period of Shakespearean acting.

Upon the exterior of the Library are three terra-cotta basso-relievo panels representing respectively scenes from

LORD RONALD GOWER'S STATUE OF SHAKESPEARE.

(From a block lent by Mr. E. Fox, Stratford-upon-Avon.)

"As You Like It," "King John," and "Hamlet"; the first and third were given by Miss Mary Anderson, the second by the architect, Mr. W. F. Unsworth.

The Shakespeare Monument.

A fine GROUP OF BRONZE STATUARY, presented by the author, The Lord Ronald Sutherland Gower, to Stratford-upon-Avon, stands in the garden on the south side of the theatre. It represents Shakespeare and four of his principal characters, Lady Macbeth, Hamlet, Prince Hal, and Sir John Falstaff, personifying tragedy, philosophy, history and comedy respectively. The sculptor spent altogether twelve years upon the work; the bronzes were cast in Paris, and the monument was unveiled on October 10th, 1888.

The Library

Of Shakespearean and Dramatic Literature is situated upon the ground floor fronting the road; it contains copies of the first four folio editions of Shakespeare's Plays, published in 1623, 1632, 1664, and 1685; some rare quartos, and other early printed books, also copies of most of the collective editions of the plays published in Great Britain and America. Through the generosity of friends many new and valuable books have from time to time been presented, and are always thankfully received by the Committee.

Anyone wishing to consult the books may do so on application to the Librarian.

The Committee desire that facilities for study should be given to students.

The Picture Galleries

Situated above the Library contain many originals from the Boydell Shakespeare Gallery, formerly in Pall Mall; portraits of Shakespeare and of famous actors and actresses; subject-pictures from the plays, also some rare engravings and a bust of the poet.

Donations of Books and Pictures are gratefully received by the Committee, who desire to make the collections as complete and interesting as possible.

Contributions should be sent to—

HALL & LANDING.

Statuary.

Facing the principal door stands a life-size solid cast of Shakespeare from the statue in Poet's Corner, Westminster Abbey. The design was made by W. Kent, and executed by P. Scheemakers, in 1740. The poet is represented holding a scroll, whereon are cut the following lines adapted from the "Tempest" (Act V., Scene 1):

"The cloud-capp'd towers, the gorgeous palaces,
The solemn temples, the great globe itself,
Yea, all which it inherit, shall dissolve
And, like the baseless fabric of a vision,
Leave not a wreck behind."

The heads on the pedestal represent Henry V., Richard III., and Queen Elizabeth. The cost of the monument was defrayed by the proceeds of two performances at the two Theatres Royai, London.

Presented by Elliot Galer, Esq.

On the staircase is a small solid cast representing Shakespeare, from a statue by Antoine Kessel.

Presented by Mrs. Tyndall.

Over the library door is a cast from the bust of Shakespeare in Holy Trinity Church, and over the door leading to the garden, a cast from the poet's statue by the Lord Ronald Sutherland Gower.

Upon a pedestal near the library door stands a bronze head of Shakespeare, composed from the "Becker Death-Mask" by William Page, of New York.

Photographs and Engravings.

In the entrance hall are seven large photographs and three proof impressions of the engraving, by R. Josey, of Gainsborough's portrait of David Garrick. The plate is now destroyed, but copies of the engraving are presented by the Council to donors of three guineas and upwards. The original painting is the property of the Corporation of Stratford, and hangs in the Town Hall.

Engraving—The River Avon and Holy Trinity Church, from the original painting by John Constable (1840).

Engraving—Shakespeare before Sir Thomas Lucy, from the painting by T. Brooks, R.A., engraved by F. Hunter (1861).

A set of coloured prints, representing The Seven Ages of Man, are arranged between the windows of the staircase. These engravings are by W. Bromley from designs by T. Stothard. Presented by E. Marlett Boddy, Esq., F.R.C.S.

Upon the walls of the corridor are exhibited engravings from the Boydell Portfolio, illustrating scenes from Shakespeare's Plays. Many of these choice prints are the work of famous English engravers of the 18th century.

There is also a proof on satin of Mongie's etching of Meissonnier's Clown signed by both artists.

In contrast to the works of some of the great masters of the English historic school of painting, this picture, by a modern French artist, shows the difference between the old and new methods of depicting scenes from Shakespeare's Plays. In expression and feeling, as in composition, execution, treatment, and drawing, the picture is a good example of the class to which it belongs.

Sarah Booth, usually called "Sally Booth," a descendant of the famous Barton Booth (1681-1733), was born in Birmingham in 1793, and when quite a girl obtained an engagement at the Manchester Theatre, then under the management of Macready. After a time Sarah Booth appeared at Covent Garden Theatre, 23rd November, 1810. It was thought she might become a rival to Mrs. Siddons, a delusion soon dispelled, though the young actress gained considerable reputation. Miss Booth was noted for her politeness and her strict observance of religious duties; when on tour she made a point of regular attendance at church. Though perhaps seen to better advantage in "Priscilla Tomboy," Sally Booth's "Juliet" was a pretty girlish performance. Her "Cordelia" was not so highly praised. This once famous actress visited Stratford repeatedly about the year 1823. She died 1867, having long quitted the stage.

Dimensions, 7ft. 8½in. by 4ft. 8½in.; on canvas.

John James Chalon was born at Geneva in 1778. He was descended from an old French family exiled after the revocation of the Edict of Nantes. When quite young he came to England, and became a student at the Academy in 1796. He was elected an Associate in 1827, and an Academician in 1841. He died at Kensington in 1854. Chalon excelled both as a landscape and figure painter. Many of his landscapes are faithful transcripts of the mountain and lake scenery of Switzerland. One of his most famous pictures, "Napoleon on board the Bellerophon," painted in 1816, hangs in the Gallery at Greenwich Hospital.

The painting of "Macbeth and the Witches" is worthy of careful study.

IDEAL PORTRAIT OF SHAKESPEARE.

Although this picture is of no value as a likeness, it is of considerable interest by reason of the talent of the lady by whom it was painted. The portrait possibly more closely resembles King James I. than the Poet whose features it was intended to represent. The medallion below the portrait is a graceful composition.

Maria Anna Angelica Catharina Kaufmann was born in 1741 at Coire, in the Grisons, where her father, an artist, was then painting. Under her father's instruction Angelica attained to great proficiency in music, languages, and painting. Having visited Milan, Florence, Rome, and Venice, she came to England in 1765 with Lady Wentworth; her talents being recognised in this country she was elected one of the first Royal Academicians. She was twice married, and died 1807.

Measure for Measure. Act II. Scene 1. 45.

This picture, painted for the Boydell Shakespeare Gallery, Pall Mall, was engraved by G. T. Ryder and C. G. Playter for J. and J. Boydell in 1793. It is the companion picture to No. 5.

Robert Smirke was born at Wigton in 1752, and at the age of nineteen became a student at the Royal Academy. He was elected an Associate of the Academy in 1792, and in the same year an Academician. In his youth he is said to have painted crests on coach panels. He certainly painted many small pictures for the engravers to illustrate plays, poems, and novels; many of these compositions he painted in monochrome (No. 38 in the Shakespeare Memorial Gallery is an example of Smirke's monochrome work.) His favourite subjects were from the Bible, English history, Don Quixote, and Shakespeare. He was employed by Alderman Boydell to paint pictures for the Shakespeare Gallery in Pall Mall, to serve as illustrations to the Boydell Edition of these Plays; several of these interesting examples of his manner are now deposited at the Shakespeare Memorial. His pictures are humorous, and generally well drawn, though they have decided mannerisms. Smirke continued to practise his art till late in life, making the designs for the bas-reliefs in front of the Oxford and Cambridge Club, of which his sons were the architects. He died in London in 1845, in his ninety-third year.

See also Nos. 3, 4, 5, 16, 17, 18, 51, 52, 97, examples by this master.

ARCHBISHOP. My gracious lady, go ;

Come, I'll conduct you to the sanctuary.

Richard III. Act II. Scene 4. 66.

John Opie, the son of a carpenter, was born near Truro in May, 1761. Having, when quite young, given indications of genius, he was taken to London and introduced to Sir Joshua Reynolds. He became an art student, and an exhibitor at the Royal Academy in 1782. In 1787 he was made a member of the Academy, and in 1805 Professor of Painting. He died in the prime of life April 9th, 1807. The picture of the little Duke of York is a masterpiece, the figures being well painted, and the whole composition good.

Dimensions, 7ft. 8in. by 5ft. 6in. ; on canvas.

Macbeth. Act I. Scene 3. 47.

Francesco Zuccarelli, an Italian, born at Pitigliano, in Tuscany, about 1702, studied at Florence and Rome. Having finished his studies he removed to Venice, whence, upon the advice of the English consul, he visited this country twice. The second and longer visit extended from 1752 to 1773. He became a foundation member of the Royal Academy, and amassed an ample fortune. Returning to Italy and settling at Florence he soon afterwards lost the whole of his savings, owing to the unsettled state of the country, and again in his old age became dependent upon his art for a living. He died in Florence in 1788. Zuccarelli's earlier works were chiefly historical pictures, but he abandoned these for decorative landscapes, with small figures. A collection of Zuccarelli's paintings was formed at Windsor Castle, and there are many examples of his art in England.

Dimensions, 3ft. by 2ft. 4½in. ; on canvas.

 Seeming and savour all the winter long :
 Grace and remembrance be to you both,
 And welcome to our shearing !

The Winter's Tale. Act IV. Scene 3. Line 71.

Francis Wheatley was born in London in 1747, and studied art in that city chiefly under the tutorship of Mortimer, and earned considerable reputation as a painter of rural and domestic subjects, many of which were engraved.

He painted twelve pictures for Alderman Boydell to illustrate Shakespeare's plays, and it is from these paintings that his merit as a composer and a colourist may best be estimated.

He was elected a Royal Academician in 1791, and died in 1801.

Dimensions, 24 inches by 18½ inches ; on panel.

OTHELLO. It gives me wonder great as my content
To see you here before me. O my soul's joy!
If after every tempest come such calms,
May the winds blow till they have waken'd death!

Othello. Act II. Scene 1. 184.

Thomas Stothard, the son of a Yorkshire man, was born in Longacre, London, 17th August, 1755. In 1770, his father being dead, he was apprenticed by his mother to a designer of brocaded silks, but soon turned his attention to making illustrations for books, in which branch of art he excelled. He was elected an Associate of the Academy in 1791, and a member in 1804. He died in London 27th April, 1834. The painting of "Othello's Return" was executed by Stothard for Alderman Boydell, engraved by T. Ryder, and published in 1799. Stothard also designed a beautiful series of the "Seven Ages," which W. Bromley engraved.

Dimensions, 6ft. 11in. by 5ft. 5in.; on canvas.

15 GEORGE ROMNEY, 1734-1802.

TITANIA REPOSING WITH HER INDIAN VOTARIES.

Presented by Charles E. Flower, Esq.

A Wood near Athens. Enter Titania with her Train.

TITANIA. Come, now a roundel and a fairy song:
Then, for the third of a minute, hence;
Some to kill cankers in the musk-rose buds,
Some war with ere-mice for their leathern wings,
To make my small elves coats.

A Midsummer Night's Dream. Act II. Scene 3. 1.

The face of the Fairy Queen is said to have been painted by Romney as a portrait of Emma Lyon, the famous Lady Hamilton, second wife of Sir William Hamilton, British Ambassador at Naples, and the friend of Lord Nelson. Titania is represented reclining; to the right a band of dusky musicians beguile the queen with music; in the background two little fairies "war with ere-mice for their leathern wings." This picture was formerly in the Beckford collection.

George Romney was born in Lancashire, December 15th, 1734. His father, a cabinet-maker, brought up the lad to that business, but, at the age of nineteen, George showed so great ability for drawing that his father placed him with a portrait painter, named Steele, then living at Kendal. In 1762 he removed to London; his talents were quickly recognised, and he rose rapidly to fame and fortune, ranking second to his famous contemporaries Reynolds and Gainsborough. He visited Italy in 1773, and returned to London in 1775. Romney's wife and family were not allowed to share his prosperity, but remained at Kendal, receiving only two visits from the painter during thirty-seven years. In later life, however, he returned to Kendal, where he died November 15th, 1802.

ROBERT SMIRKE, R.A.

AN ALLEGORICAL SUBJECT IN MONOCHROME.

Presented by Andrew MacCullum, Esq.

When Smirke intended a picture to be engraved, he sometimes painted in monochrome; this graceful composition is a good example of the artist's method.

Dimensions, 1ft. 3in. diameter; circular; on canvas.

19 SIR THOMAS LAWRENCE, P.R.A., 1769-1830.

PORTRAIT OF MRS. SIDDONS.

Presented by Elliot Galer, Esq.

Although an interesting picture, this portrait of Mrs. Siddons is not a representative example of the artist's work; it appears to have been painted when he was young. There is generally a peculiar freshness and refinement about Lawrence's manner which is well exemplified in the portrait of Kemble (No. 53) in the Memorial Picture Gallery.

Sir Thomas Lawrence, the most celebrated portrait painter of his time, was born at Bristol in 1769. He was the son of an innkeeper at Devizes. At the age of ten the infant prodigy began to take portraits in crayon. In 1785-6 he commenced painting in oils, and in the following year entered as a student at the Royal Academy. This early promise bore fruit; Lawrence was elected an Academician in 1794, and, on the death of Benjamin West in 1820, was appointed President of the Royal Academy. He died in London in 1830, and was buried in St. Paul's Cathedral.

Dimensions, 2ft. 6½in. by 1ft. 10½in. ; on canvas.

John Cause, a portrait painter of some note, was born about the year 1779. He painted a few historical pictures, and wrote a treatise on "The Art of Painting," published in 1840. He died in 1862.

Dimensions, 2ft. 5½in. by 2ft. ½in. ; on canvas.

WOLSEY.

Buckingham shall lessen this big look.

Henry VIII. Act I. Scene 1. 115.

Sir John Gilbert, one of the greatest illustrators of Shakespeare's Plays, is represented at Stratford-upon-Avon by this picture only. It is much to be desired that more examples of his art be placed in the Gallery. Sir John Gilbert, the son of a retired captain, was born in 1817. After leaving school he entered the office of an estate agent at London, but, having no taste for figures, he persuaded his parents to allow him to study drawing. In 1836 he exhibited his first picture in the Royal Academy. He contributed to the early numbers of Punch and The Illustrated London News. Besides painting about 400 pictures, he designed illustrations for many periodicals and some of the best English classics, especially Shakespeare, whose plays he thoroughly appreciated. Sir John died in 1897.

Dimensions, 2ft. 10in. by 1ft. 7in. ; on a panel.

HENRY FUSELI, R.A., 1741-1825.

THE WITCHES APPEARING TO MACBETH.

Presented by Henry Graves, Esq.

BANQUO. You seem to understand me,
By each at once her choppy finger laying
Upon her skinny lips ; you should be women,
And yet your beards forbid me to interpret
That you are so.

Macbeth. Act I. Scene 3. 39.

Henrich Fussly, better known by his English name, Henry Fuseli, was born at Zurich, 7th February, 1741. In 1780, having come to England for a second time and changed his name to Fuseli, he entered into an arrangement with Alderman Boydell for illustrating Shakespeare's Plays, painting eight large pictures for the Shakespeare Gallery. He died at Putney, April 16th, 1825. Fuseli belonged to a mystic school, and his imagination outran his technical ability ; some of his interpretations of Shakespeare are powerful, though wanting the charm of colour and grace of drawing which characterise the works of his great contemporaries.

Dimensions, 2ft. 11½in. by 2ft. 5½in. ; on canvas.

JAMES NORTHCOTE, R.A., 1746-1831.

HUBERT AND PRINCE ARTHUR.

Presented by Elliot Galer.

ARTHUR. O save me, Hubert, save me ! my eyes are out
Even with the fierce look of these bloody men.

King John. Act IV. Scene 1. 56.

James Northcote, like several early Academicians, spent the first part of his life in business. He was twenty-five years of age when he left Plymouth, his native town, where he had assisted his father in the trade of watchmaking. Journeying to London he there found a friend, Sir

Joshua Reynolds, also a Devonshire man, under whose tuition he studied painting. He joined the band of artists working for Alderman Boydell, and painted several pictures for the Shakespeare Gallery, to illustrate "King John," "Richard II.," First part of "Henry VI.," Third part of "Henry VI.," "Richard III." (three pictures), and "Romeo and Juliet." He died in his eighty-sixth year (1831). His most important works are the "Princes in the Tower" and "Hubert and Arthur;" in this latter picture, now in the Shakespeare Memorial Gallery, the training of Reynolds is manifest, but there is also a strength of feeling peculiar to Northcote, and it is evident that he profited by his studies in Italy.

The picture bears the artist's signature, "James Northcote, pinxit 1789," written over the arch in the upper part of the canvas to the left. It was engraved by R. Thew, and published in 1798.

Dimensions, 8ft. 4in. by 5ft. 11in.; on canvas.

ARTIST UNKNOWN.

PORTRAIT OF KING RICHARD II.

Presented by J. R. Furness, Esq.

This ancient portrait was included in the Earl of Shrewsbury's collection at Alton Towers, and sold at the great sale of that collection. Afterwards it was exhibited at the rooms of the Royal Cambrian Academy, Plas Mawr, Conway, and was presented to the Memorial Gallery by Mr. Furness.

A somewhat similar portrait of Richard II. may be seen at the National Portrait Gallery, London.

Dimensions, 18½ inches by 16 inches.

Mather Brown, by birth an American, came to England when quite young, and studied with his fellow-countryman West. He first exhibited a picture in the Royal Academy in 1782, and obtained some celebrity as a portrait painter. He also painted historical subjects, including a series of scenes illustrating the war in India with Tippoo Saib, and was employed by Alderman Boydell to paint some pictures for the Shakespeare Gallery in Pall Mall. He died in London in 1831.

Dimensions, 1ft. 10½in. by 1ft. 4in.; on canvas.

ROBERT TATE.

MRS. SIDDONS AS "THE TRAGIC MUSE."

Presented by the Artist.

This is a copy (made 1883) of the celebrated picture by Sir Joshua Reynolds. The original was bequeathed (1868) by Mrs. Siddons' youngest sister, Cecilia, Mrs. George Combe, to Mr. R. Tate, and this copy was made while the original was in his possession. Mrs. Tate is a great-grand-daughter of Mrs. Siddons.

Sarah Kemble, the greatest English tragic actress, was born at Brecon in 1755. Her father, the elder Kemble, who was manager of an itinerant company, introduced her upon the stage when quite a child. At the age of seventeen she resided with Mrs. Greathead at Guy's Cliff, Warwick. In 1773 Sarah Kemble married Mr. Siddons, a young actor, with whom she returned to the stage, and quickly won for herself a leading position, until finally she was recognised as the Queen of Tragedy. Her principal parts were Lady Macbeth, Constance in "King John," and Queen Catherine in "Henry VIII." Mrs. Siddons died in London (1831) and was buried in Paddington Church. There are several portraits of this great actress at the Memorial, as well as personal relics; the embroidered slippers worn by her during her last performance of Lady Macbeth are preserved in the Library. According to tradition Mrs. Siddons once played in Stratford, in a barn, in Guild Street, now a stone-yard, but then occasionally used as a theatre.

Dimensions, 4ft. 1in. by 3ft. 3in.

Portraits of Shakespeare.

The likeness of "The Maker of our stately English speech" has come down to posterity in many forms; there are, however, certain easily-recognised types derived more or less directly from one or two contemporary likenesses.

THE BUST of the Poet on his Monument in Holy Trinity Church, Stratford-upon-Avon, disfigured as it is with modern paint, may yet be considered of the first importance. In all probability it was made from a cast of the face taken after death; it was erected soon after Shakespeare's decease, during the lifetime of his relatives and friends, and is known to have been the work of one Johnson, a Dutch sculptor and "tombe maker" living in London in the reign of James I. A fine cast of the Church Bust may be seen in the Hall over the Library door.

THE DROESHOUT ENGRAVING.—On the title page of the first folio edition of Shakespeare's Plays, published in 1623, is a portrait from a copper plate engraved by Martin Droeshout; and on the opposite page is printed the well-known address to The Reader, commencing:—

" This figure, that thou here seest put
It was for gentle Shakespeare cut: "

At the time of Shakespeare's death Martin Droeshout was a child. He probably engraved the plate when he was about twenty-one years of age, working from a drawing made from an oil painting. That painting is believed to have been found, and now hangs in the Memorial Picture Gallery (see No. 27).

The Church Bust, the Droeshout Engraving, and the Droeshout Original Portrait, bear a close resemblance to one another.

The other most famous portraits are the Ely Palace, belonging to the Birthplace Trustees; The Felton Head, belonging to the Baroness Burdett-Coutts; the Chandos Portrait, at the National Portrait Gallery; and the Jansen (so called), belonging to the family of the Duke of Somerset.

For the sake of comparison the Committee of the Memorial have collected all the available portraits of Shakespeare, and it is hoped the owners of portraits of the Poet will generously assist the Committee in their endeavour to make the Exhibition complete.

27 THE DROESHOUT ORIGINAL PORTRAIT.

Presented by Mrs. Flower.

This remarkable portrait—probably the only one with contemporary authority of being a true likeness of the Poet—was added to the collection in the Memorial Picture Gallery in 1892, on loan from the late Mr. H. C. Clements, of Sydenham. Upon the death of the owner in 1895, it was purchased by Mrs. Flower and presented to the Memorial. Since the picture became the property of the Governors of the Memorial it has been submitted to critical examination, and although there are differences of opinion, the weight of evidence is strongly in favour of it being an original portrait from life. There is high expert authority for saying that the painting could not have been taken from the engraving, but that the engraving was copied from the painting. The portrait is painted upon two planks of old English elm, prepared with white plaster, primed red. In the upper left-hand corner is the inscription :—"Willm. Shakespeare, 1609." So remarkable is the resemblance between this portrait and the engraving in the first folio edition of Shakespeare's Plays, published in 1623, and the picture is so superior to the engraving in respect of detail and drawing, that there is but little doubt that Martin Droeshout made his engraving either directly from the painting or from a drawing copied from it. It should be remembered that Droeshout's engraving of Shakespeare is the only portrait about which there is contemporary evidence showing it to be a likeness of the Poet. The engraving is a poor production, crude and harsh. This painting is the work of an artist of greater ability. It is somewhat faded, and has once narrowly escaped burning.

Martin Droeshout was only 14 years old when Shakespeare died, and 21 when the engraving was published in the first folio.

Dimensions, 1ft. 10½in. by 1ft. 5½in. ; on a panel.

THE VENICE PORTRAIT.

Presented by H. Graves, Esq.

This picture was bought by Mr. Graves in Paris ; it is said to have come from Venice, and bears an inscription in Italian on the back. The head is painted on a square piece of canvas, which is let into a larger and more modern piece.

Dimensions, 2ft. 5½in. by 1ft. 10½in. ; oval ; on canvas.

THE DEATH-MASK.

A Photograph.

Presented by the Lord Ronald Gower.

In the year 1849 Dr. Ludwig Becker discovered at Mayence a Death-mask inscribed with the date 1616. The Mask was brought to Stratford. When compared with the Church Bust the chief measurements in both were found to agree, and the conclusion arrived at by Dr. Becker was that he had discovered the Mask from which Gerard Johnson made the monumental effigy in Stratford Church. The truth of this conclusion is doubtful. The Death-mask is now preserved in the Ducal Palace at Darmstadt.

THE DAVENANT BUST (Copy).

Presented by the Rev. R. Owen.

Whilst the workmen were pulling down the remains of the old Duke's Theatre, built by Sir William Davenant in Lincoln's Inn Fields, a bust of Shakespeare was discovered bricked up over a doorway. The bust passed into the possession of Sir Richard Owen, who sold it to the Duke of Devonshire. The Duke had two copies made, and is said to have presented the original bust to the Garrick Club, where it is to this day. Sir Richard Owen obtained a copy, which he placed in his garden at Richmond. After Sir Richard's death, his grandson, the Rev. Richard Owen, M.A., son of Sir Richard's only son, William Owen, presented this copy to the Shakespeare Memorial Association.

J. FORBES ROBERTSON.

MISS MARY ANDERSON (MADAME DE NAVARRO).

Presented by Mrs. Griffin.

An early portrait of Miss Anderson painted in 1885.

Miss Mary Anderson, born at Sacramento, California, made her début at Louisville, as Juliet, in 1875, and played with increasing popularity in the United States till 1885, when she appeared at the Lyceum Theatre, London, and at once won all hearts by her wonderful ability and beauty. In 1890 Miss Anderson married M. Antonio de Navarro, and has not appeared upon the stage since 1889. Madame de Navarro is a Governor of the Shakespeare Memorial. It was upon the stage of the Memorial Theatre that she appeared for the first time in England in her favourite rôle of Rosalind (1885).

The artist who painted this portrait is the now famous Shakespearean actor Mr. J. Forbes Robertson.

Dimensions, 3ft. 3½in. by 2ft. 5½in. ; on canvas.

NICHOLAS J. CROWLEY, R.H.A. (Died 1857),

SAMUEL PHELPS AS "HAMLET."

Presented by J. Maxwell, Esq.

The name of Samuel Phelps, dear to English playgoers twenty years ago, is still remembered with gratitude by Shakespeare students of the present day. Phelps made his first appearance at the Haymarket Theatre, on August 28th, 1837, in the character of "Shylock." For some time he was a prominent member of Macready's Company at Covent Garden, but is best remembered in connection with the famous Shakespearean revivals at Sadler's Wells Theatre, where he produced not only all the best known of Shakespeare's Plays, but some which, so far as the stage is concerned, had long been laid aside. Sadler's Wells opened under the management of Phelps and Mrs. Warner on May 27th, 1844. The manager's farewell benefit took place November 6th, 1862, but he continued to perform occasionally till 1878, the year of his death.

Dimensions, 2ft. 11in. by 2ft. 3in. ; on canvas.

JOHN MARTIN, 1789-1854.

MACBETH AND THE WITCHES.

Presented by G. Jennings, Esq.

Scene: A cavern. In the middle a boiling cauldron and three witches. A show of eight kings; the last with a glass in his hand; Banquo's ghost following.

MACBETH. Thou art too like the spirit of Banquo ; down !
Thy crown doth sear mine eye-balls—and thy hair,
Thou other gold-bound brow, is like the first.
A third is like the former. Filthy hags !
Why do you show me this ?

Macbeth. Act IV. Scene 1.

John Martin was born at Haydon, near Hexham, in 1789. When quite young he painted coats of arms on coaches and was employed to decorate china. He came to London in 1806, and exhibited his first picture in 1812. After having some disagreement with the members of the Royal Academy, he was instrumental in founding the Society of British Artists, where his works were regularly exhibited. He painted both in oil and water colour, and engraved many of his pictures himself. John Martin died at Douglas, in the Isle of Man, in 1854.

Dimensions, 1ft. 6½in. by 1ft. ; on a panel.

GEORGE ROMNEY, 1734-1802.

THE INFANT SHAKESPEARE ATTENDED BY NATURE AND THE PASSIONS.

Presented by H. Graves, Esq.

This picture was engraved by B. Smith, and published in 1799. A copy in chromo-lithography, one of the earliest essays in this process, was also made ; a proof impression of the lithograph hangs in the gallery.

To the imagination of Romney we owe some remarkable, and a few beautiful Shakespearean pictures; not the least remarkable is this of "The Infant Shakespeare attended by the Passions." The companion picture, "Shakespeare Nursed by Tragedy and Comedy," a more pleasing composition, was engraved by B. Smith, and published in 1803.

Dimensions, 1ft. 11½in. by 1ft. 6½in. ; on a panel.

Miss Grimani, better known as Mrs. Charles Mayne Young, a talented and beautiful actress who lived at the commencement of the nineteenth century, distinguished herself in portraying some of Shakespeare's finest characters. Her first appearance was at Bath, in 1800. She played at the Hay-market in 1803-1804. Mrs. Young died in 1806, aged twenty-one years.

Dimensions, 7ft. 8½in. by 4ft. 6in. ; on canvas.

T. BROOKS, R.A.

SHAKESPEARE BEFORE SIR THOMAS LUCY.

Presented by Mrs. Flower.

Although the scene represented in this picture may not be historical, Shakespeare is said to have hunted the deer in Fulbrook Park, some three miles to the north-east of Stratford, between the road to Warwick and the river Avon. Fulbrook was then the property of Sir Francis Englefield, an attainted exile, and was sequestered by the Crown. Queen Mary is said to have disparked it. Sir Thomas Lucy had no deer park at Charlecote, but his property ran for a mile along the river opposite Fulbrook, and Sir Thomas, the great man of the district, would not unnaturally think himself the guardian of the game upon the adjoining estate, and at least would be appealed to as arbitrator in any case of trespass. It is impossible to say how the story originated. But it is probable that the young men of Stratford in the time of Elizabeth did hunt deer in the neighbourhood. The legend is at least picturesque, and certainly of respectable antiquity. This picture was exhibited in the International Exhibition of 1862, and was engraved by F. Hunter.

Dimensions, 4ft. 6in. by 3ft. ; on canvas.

Othello. Act I. Scene 3.

H. J. Fradelle was born at Lille in 1778, but passed the greater part of his life in England. From 1816 to 1855 he occasionally exhibited pictures at the Royal Academy, though the majority of his works were sent to the British Institution. He died in 1865.

Dimensions, 2ft. 1½in. by 1ft. 8in.

THE FALLOW DEER.

The deer over the fireplace is a stage property ; it was first used when the late Mr. Barry Sullivan produced "As You Like It" at the Memorial Theatre in 1879, also in the performance of the same play in 1885, when Miss Mary Anderson played "Rosalind." The deer was presented by H. S. Lucy, Esq., from the historic herd at Charlecote. The ironwork supporting the stag formerly held the sign of the

G. H. HARLOW, 1787-1819.

PORTRAIT OF WILLIAM AUGUSTUS CONWAY.

Presented by his Grandchildren:—F. Booth Conway, Lillian Conway, Marianne Conway (Mrs. Osmond Tearle).

William Augustus Conway, known best as "Handsome Conway," was born in London in 1789, and educated at Barbadoes. Disregarding the plans which his friends had made for his future he joined Macready's Company, playing alternately at Sheffield, Manchester, Leicester, and Newcastle, with credit to himself and profit to his manager. After playing for some time at Dublin he returned to England to obtain an engagement at Covent Garden Theatre. He figures in Harlow's famous picture of Mrs. Siddons and the Kemble family. Conway next went to America; his dramatic career, was of short duration. He was drowned in Charleston Harbour, in America, in 1828. His only child, Frederick B. Conway, also an actor, died in America, 1874.

Dimensions, 2ft. 5½in. by 2ft. ¼in.; on canvas.

OLIVER I. LAY.

EDWIN BOOTH AS "HAMLET."

Presented by "The Players," New York.

This painting was unveiled by the Hon. George F. Parker, on 23rd April, 1896.

Edwin Booth was born near Baltimore, Maryland, November 13th, 1833. His father, Junius Brutus Booth, then the leading tragedian of the United States, took the boy with him on many of his professional tours, on one occasion he appeared at short notice as "Richard III." instead of his father. From that time his career was settled; he played with success in every part of the United States, first visiting England in 1861-2. Later in 1881 and in 1882, he played with great acceptance at the Lyceum with Mr. (now Sir) Henry Irving—their alternation as "Othello" and "Iago" being, perhaps, the most notable feature of the engagement.

As a man he was always thoughtful, quiet, shy, reserved, and, at times, almost gloomy; but lovable to his friends, and family, and greatly attached to all who came near him.

Dimensions, 2ft. 5½in. by 1ft. 8in.; on canvas.

PAUL VAN SOMER, 1576-1621.

PORTRAIT OF HENRY WRIOTHESLEY, 2ND EARL OF SOUTHAMPTON.

Presented by Henry Graves, Esq.

This fine portrait of Shakespeare's friend and patron, to whom he dedicated "Venus and Adonis" and "The Rape of Lucrece," next to the portrait of the poet himself, may be counted the most precious treasure contained in the Memorial Picture Gallery. Henry Wriothesley was born on the 6th of October, 1573. His bounty, and the encouragement of the poet have immortalised a name which otherwise might have been forgotten; even his association with the Earl of Essex in the treasonable affair of 1601, and his subsequent imprisonment in the Tower will scarcely be remembered, though his patronage of Shakespeare and Florio are notorious. He died at Bergen-op-Zoom, 10th November, 1624. That he was the youth to whom Shakespeare addressed his sonnets is the belief of some Shakespeareans.

Paul Van Somer, the painter of this portrait, was born at Antwerp about the year 1576, and resided chiefly in Holland with his brother Bernard until 1604. In that year he came to England, and painted the portrait of the King and many of the great people at Court, including William Earl of Pembroke and Lord Bacon. He died in London in 1621.

Dimensions, 6ft. 2½in. by 4ft. 2in.; on canvas.

50 HENRY WYNDHAM PHILLIPS, 1820-1868.

PORTRAIT OF MRS. STIRLING AS "PEG WOFFINGTON."

Presented by Mrs. Stirling (Lady Hutton Gregory).

Lady Hutton Gregory, better known as Mrs. Stirling, was the daughter of Captain Hehl, and was born in Queen Street, Mayfair, July, 1816. In January, 1836, Mrs. Stirling first appeared at the Adelphi Theatre. In 1839, at Drury Lane, she took the part of "Beatrice" in a revival of "Much Ado About Nothing." In 1847 (Tuesday, December 7th), she, having by that time established her reputation, took part in the special Shakespearean performances at the Theatre Royal, Covent Garden, in aid of the fund for the purchase of Shakespeare's house, playing on this occasion "Mrs. Ford," in a selection from "The Merry Wives of Windsor." At the first performance of "Masks and Faces," at the Haymarket (November 20th, 1852), Mrs. Stirling played the part of "Peg Woffington." In August, 1886, this talented lady made her last appearance on the stage, which she had adorned for half a century. After the death of her first husband in 1894, Mrs. Stirling married Sir Charles Hutton Gregory. She died December 28th, 1895.

First Part Henry IV. Act II. Scene 1.

This picture, though of small size, is in Smirke's best manner. It does not appear to have been engraved for the Boydell Portfolio. It was exhibited in Stratford at the Tercentenary Celebration, 1864. The illustration is a pen and ink sketch by Mr. W. Quartremaine, of Stratford-upon-Avon,

53 SIR THOMAS LAWRENCE, P.R.A., 1769-1830.

PORTRAIT OF JOHN KEMBLE, 1757-1823.

Presented by H. Willett, Esq.

John Philip Kemble was a native of Prescot, in Lancashire, where he was born in 1757. His father was the manager of an itinerant company of actors performing chiefly in the midlands. John Kemble was educated at the English college at Douay, and adopted the profession of an actor. His first appearance was in 1783, in London, as "Hamlet." In later years Kemble produced a series of Shakespeare's Plays with a splendour never before attempted. In 1817 Kemble retired from the stage, and died at Lausanne in 1830. In this portrait the actor is shown as he appeared in private life without any theatrical disguise. The painting is an excellent example of Lawrence's delicate and refined manner.

Other portraits of Kemble, see Nos. 23, 26.

Andrew Cherry, born about the year 1762, at Limerick, was a comedian, and the author of several plays. Charles Mathews said of him "He is an extremely little man, I think less than Quick, with a droll face. He is one of the most humorous men in the world off the stage, and a very good actor on it." He wrote plays and some well-known songs, "The Bay of Biscay," "Tom Moody," "The Dear Little Shamrock," &c.

Lent by S. Sanders, Esq.

In this picture Francis Anne (better known as Fanny Kemble) is represented in her dressing-room just before her début at Covent Garden. The play that night was "Romeo and Juliet," and the traditional costume for Juliet, a modern court dress of white satin. Mrs. Kemble determined to return to the stage on that occasion to play the part of "Lady Capulet." Charles Kemble also played in the piece. The other figures in the picture are portraits of the Kemble family.

Henry Perronet Briggs, R.A., was born at Walworth, 1791, of an old Norwich family. He entered as a student of the Royal Academy in 1811. In 1814 he first exhibited in the Academy, continuing to paint historical subjects until he became an R.A. in 1832, and died in 1844.

In 1768 he was made a member of the French Academy, and afterwards appointed Court Painter by the King. In 1771 he quitted France and settled in London. He designed scenes and decorations at Drury Lane Theatre. In 1780 he was elected an Associate of the Royal Academy, and in 1781 became an Academician. He died at Hammersmith in 1812.

Cradled in a theatre, James Wallack may justly be called an actor by birth. His father was long a favourite performer at Astley's, and his mother was the best actress that ever trod the boards of the Amphitheatre. James was born in 1792, and commenced his dramatic career at Prince's Street, Soho. He soon obtained an engagement at Drury Lane, and there gained a moderate reputation, but he won his laurels in America, playing for a time with great success. Returning to England in 1820, he appeared as the leading man of Drury Lane, and played in Old English Comedy and Shakespeare.

Empress took a fancy to her, and by-and-by sent her to England with letters of introduction to Lady Burlington. She made her debut at the Opera House when twenty-one years old, and the King came to do her honour. Seeing Garrick play one night, Violette fell in love with him, and he with her. In answer to a friend who condoled with her upon the death of her husband, the widow said, "He never was a husband to me." The lady being surprised, Mrs. Garrick added, "for during the thirty years we were married he always remained my lover." Mrs. Garrick died on October 16th, 1822, in the 99th year of her age.

This picture is believed to have been painted in Paris, either in 1749 or more probably in 1763, on the occasion of the second visit of Mr. and Mrs. Garrick to the French capital.

Dimensions, 3ft. 2½in. by 2ft. 4in. ; on canvas.

ROBERT EDGE PINE, 1742-1790.

PORTRAIT OF DAVID GARRICK, 1716-1779.

Presented by Edgar Flower, Esq.

David Garrick, the most famous actor of the 18th century, was the son of an officer in the English Army descended from a Huguenot family; his mother was the daughter of a Lichfield parson of Irish extraction; he was born at Hereford on February 19th, 1716, and educated at Lichfield Grammar School. Afterwards David and his brother George became the pupils of Samuel Johnson, at Edial, near Lichfield. The doctor was then writing his tragedy of "Irene," and when it was finished he and his pupil set out for London, arriving in the big city with only a few halfpence in their pockets. After trying the profession of a lawyer and the business of a wine merchant, Garrick adopted the calling of an actor. In 1741 he appeared at the Goodman's Fields Theatre as "Richard III." The powers of Garrick were universal, he excelled equally in tragedy, and comedy, or the broadest farce. In 1769, when his reputation was universal, Garrick determined to celebrate a Shakespeare Jubilee at Stratford-upon-Avon. An enormous rotunda was erected in the Bankcroft by the river, near the spot where the Memorial Theatre now stands. Ten years later (1779) Garrick died at the age of fifty-three years, and was accorded a magnificent funeral in Westminster Abbey.

R. E. Pine, who painted this excellent portrait of Garrick, was the son of John Pine the engraver, and was born in London in 1742. He painted portraits and historical subjects. In 1782 he exhibited a collection of illustrations to Shakespeare. There is another portrait of Garrick by him in the National Portrait Gallery. When about forty years of age he went to America, and died in Philadelphia.

Dimensions, 2ft. 5in. by 2ft.  $\frac{1}{2}$ in. ; on canvas.

DAVID GARRICK AND HIS WIFE PLAYING PICQUET.

Presented by Algernon Graves, Esq.

This picture represents Garrick at middle age, and differs considerably from the other portraits of the great actor.

Johann Zoffany, of Bohemian descent, was born at Frankfort-on-the-Maine, about the year 1733. He studied painting in Rome, and came to England in 1758. Ten years later his name was placed among the first forty original members of the Royal Academy. He then visited Italy and India, whence he returned in 1796, after having acquired a competent fortune. He died in England in 1810.

Dimensions, 4ft. 1in. by 3ft. 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ in. ; on canvas.

Second Part King Henry VI. Act III. Scene 3.

The greatest English portrait painter, Sir Joshua Reynolds, was born at Plympton in Devonshire in 1723, and educated in the grammar school there by his father, the Rev. Samuel Reynolds. In 1743 he went to London to study under Thomas Hudson, an eminent portrait painter. In 1749 he accompanied Lord Keppel to Gibraltar, and thence travelled to Italy. In 1752 he returned to England, and settling in St. Martin's Lane, London, soon became a leading figure in society, the friend of Dr. Johnson, Burke, Goldsmith, and Garrick. On the foundation of the Royal Academy in 1768, Reynolds was nominated President and received the honour of knighthood in the same year. He exhibited 245 works at the Royal Academy, and delivered many excellent lectures on art. In 1787 Alderman Boydell determined to publish a great edition of Shakespeare, beautifully printed and illustrated. Early in 1789 the undertaking was so far advanced that a great number of pictures were painted, and a gallery built to receive them on the site of Dodsley's house in Pall Mall. For this famous Shakespeare Gallery Sir Joshua painted two pictures, which were afterwards engraved; the "Death of Cardinal Beaufort" (engraved by C. Watson, published in 1792) and a wonderful composition representing the Witches in Macbeth (engraved by Thew in 1802). The original painting of Cardinal Beaufort, after passing through several hands, was at last bought by Mr. H. Graves, who presented it to the Memorial Association.

Attributed to SIR ANTHONY VANDYCK.

1599-1641.

PORTRAIT OF A BOY WITH A DOG.

Presented by E. Marlett Boddy, Esq., F.R.C.S.

The portrait now under consideration is believed to represent one of the children of Charles I.

Born at Antwerp in 1599, Anthony Vandyck enjoyed the privilege of being one of Ruben's pupils, and in 1619, when twenty years old, left Antwerp to travel in Italy, where he earned a brilliant reputation.

The encouragement given by Charles I. to the fine arts induced Vandyck to visit England in 1629, and he remained in this country almost continually until his death in 1641. Enjoying the patronage of the King, Vandyck painted many portraits of members of the Royal Family, and of the nobility.

Dimensions,  $27\frac{1}{2}$  inches by  $24\frac{1}{4}$  inches; on canvas.

SIR PETER LELY, 1618-1680.

PORTRAIT OF NELL GWYNN.

"Pretty, Witty Nell Gwynn" (1650-1687), was one of the first women who took part in performances on the English stage, it being then usual for boys, or young men, to appear in female characters. She subsequently became the mistress of Charles II., and the mother of the first Duke of St. Albans.

Sir Peter Lely was born in the Netherlands, and settled in London in 1641 (the year of Vandyck's death). He became court painter to Charles II., by whom he was knighted. Some of his best subjects were the court beauties of the day, who smile from his canvas, to a regulation pattern. There is, however, a certain charm about all Lely's work which elevates it above that of most of his contemporaries.

Dimensions,  $28\frac{1}{2}$  inches by  $23\frac{1}{2}$  inches ; on canvas.

PORTRAIT OF ALEXANDER POPE.

Presented by E. Marlett Boddy Esq., F.R.C.S.

Alexander Pope (1688-1744) edited one of the early editions of Shakespeare's plays (1723), and although he was not well fitted for the task, earned no little reputation by it; but his fame rests rather upon his abilities as a poet than as an editor of other men's works.

William Hogarth, who is best known by his wonderful engravings, was born in London in 1697. He painted a few portraits, some of which approach caricatures as does his head of Pope, evidently no flattering likeness.

Dimensions,  $11\frac{1}{4}$  inches by  $8\frac{1}{2}$  inches ; on canvas.

114

JOHN HOPPNER, R.A., 1758-1810.

PORTRAIT OF SIR WALTER SCOTT WHEN A BOY.

Presented by E. Marlett Boddy, Esq., F.R.C.S.

John Hoppner, the rival of Lawrence as a portrait painter, was born at Whitechapel, of German parents. He was particularly successful as a painter of children's portraits, claiming for himself purity of look as well as purity of style.

Dimensions,  $16\frac{1}{2}$  inches by  $14\frac{1}{2}$  inches ; on canvas.

Of all the portraits of "Bonny Prince Charlie" this is perhaps the most satisfactory, representing the young prince at his best. He was born at Rome in 1720, and died in that city in 1788.

The donor of this portrait discovered it hidden away and covered with soot in the chimney corner of a cottage in Devonshire.

Thomas Gainsborough, a native of Sudbury, removed to Bath in 1760, and in 1774 to London. As a portrait painter he probably excels all other masters of the English school.
